Palestine Revisited: Unveiling the Historical Roots of Palestine's Struggle for Justice

Monday, February 10, 2025 | 7:00 pm
County Room, Lacombe Memorial Centre

Dr. Ageel is a third-generation Palestinian refugee. From 2000-2006 she worked as a translator with The Guardian newspaper, and is currently an Assistant Lecturer in the Faculty of Arts at the University of Alberta. She is editor of Apartheid in Palestine: Hard Laws and Harder Experiences, as well as co-editor of Women's Voices from Gaza, a seven-book series documenting life in Palestine before and after the 1948 Nakba as recounted by the women who lived through the experiences.

Dr. Ageel's knowledge of the Middle East conflict is both scholarly and personal. Born and raised in a refugee camp in Gaza, she still has family who live in the conflict zone as internally displaced persons. Her PhD dissertation explored the historic and contemporary role of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA) in addressing durable solutions for Palestinian refugees.

With personal testimony and academic rigour, Dr. Ageel seeks to share the story of Palestine -- then and now -- through a uniquely Palestinian lens.

BROWN BAG LUNCH WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 12.

Dr. Jonathan Campbell will be presenting some fascinating research at our Brown Bag Lunch titled "Ancient Documents, Digital Tools: New Methods for Studying New Testament Manuscripts"

Abstract: The New Testament that we read today did not appear out of thin air. For the centuries before the invention of the printing press, scribes undertook the painstaking work of hand copying every word. Because such copying introduces the possibility of error, scholars of the New Testament text compare these ancient manuscripts to come to a better understanding of what each book originally said. This presentation gives an overview of this reconstructive work, highlighting the digital tools that have brought the field of New Testament textual criticism into the 21st century.

Plan to spend lunch with us next Wednesday and learn about the important research happening in our own Religious Studies program!

PEDAGOGY

Pedagogy refers to the method and practice of teaching. Both an art and a science, teaching shapes the way knowledge is transmitted and transformed across generations. Great teachers do more than impart facts—they inspire curiosity, cultivate critical thinking, and adapt their methods to meet the diverse needs of learners. Rooted in both theory and practice, effective pedagogy balances structure with flexibility, integrating research-based strategies with the human touch of mentorship. Great teachers empower their students, igniting a flame within them to reach their goals. The evolution of teaching reflects the ever-changing landscape of education. In this symposium, we celebrate teachers and their invaluable role in educating the minds of tomorrow.
