Help students build their tax knowledge this Financial Literacy Month

November marks Financial Literacy Month in Canada, and the Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) is dedicated to helping youth boost their tax literacy. Tax literacy means knowing how to make informed tax decisions with confidence!

We believe that everyone deserves to feel empowered by understanding their taxes. It's not just about following the rules; it's about giving you the tools to manage your finances. We offer a range of tools and resources to help young people prepare for tax filing and for accessing important benefit and credit payments.

We know that taxes can feel overwhelming and confusing. Together, we can navigate the complexities and make the process simpler for students. Keep reading to learn more!

Why should students file a tax return

Every year, students need to file an income tax and benefit return if they:

- would like to receive a tax refund they may be owed

- would like to receive any benefit or credit payments they may be eligible for

- have to pay tax for the year

Students should still file even if they have little or no income. Depending on their income and family situation, they may be eligible to receive benefit and credit payments, such as the goods and services tax/harmonized sales tax \(GST/HST\) credit.

Claim your expenses

School can be expensive. Students may be able to claim an education-related deduction or a credit on their taxes to help!

- 16+ and taking post-secondary courses? Students can claim a tuition credit to reduce what they owe or they could carry it forward. They can also transfer an amount to a parent, grandparent, or spouse, which in turn can reduce their taxes.

It's a win-win!

- Moved for school? Students may be able to claim moving expenses if their new home is at least 40 km closer to school.

- Paid interest on student loans? Students might be eligible to claim that too, or they could carry it forward and claim it later.

Learn about your taxes

Learn about your taxes is a free self-paced online learning tool designed to help young people understand what taxes are, how to do them, how to read a pay stub, and more. Through our 5-minute lessons and quizzes, students can get a basic understanding of what benefit and credit payments they could be eligible for. They can also check out helpful videos and infographics in our Multimedia gallery.

Factsheet for students

Read our factsheet for students to get a snapshot of tax-related information students should know, like:

- how they could get benefit and credit payments

- documents they need to do their taxes

- ways to do their taxes, and more

Register for upcoming webinars

We host free webinars to share information about tax filing and benefit and credit payments for students, protecting themselves from scams, and more. Register for our upcoming webinars or view past recordings on our Upcoming Events page.

Start saving for your future

It is never too early to start saving! Understanding tax systems can help students plan their finances better, budget more accurately, and save more for the future.

A Tax-Free Savings Account \(TFSA\) is a great way for students who are 18 and older to save tax-free! However, it is important to remember that overcontributing to your TFSA can result in a tax of 1% for every month that the excess contributions stay in your account(s).

Looking to learn about more ways to save? In our latest podcast episode, TFSA vs. RRSP, what's the difference?, we dive into the differences between the two registered plans and answer the most frequently asked questions.

Get free tax help

Need help doing taxes? Students may be able to get them done at a free tax clinic! Free tax clinics are generally offered between March and April across Canada, but many are open year-round. You can get help in person or virtually. Find the right clinic for you.

For more information, visit our Students webpage. Tax know-how doesn't happen overnight, and that's okay. Every bit of knowledge students gain can have a big impact on their financial health. We're here to guide them, one step at a time. We encourage you to share these useful tools with the students in your community during Financial Literacy Month and year-round!
